(The Jews reckoned by the year of 360 days, and in all probability made an adjustment by adding a thirteenth month occasionally. They had two New Years, the Civil, in Tisri (October), and the Sacred, in Abib or Nisan, the month in which they left Egypt under Moses. The following table gives the months in order, beginning with the Sacred New Year. The numbers in parentheses are those of the months according to the civil reckoning ; and the modern names given are approximately the corresponding months according to our calendar. The exact period in modern terms differs each year)

(From earliest times in all known peoples and races, a sacrifice, generally by fire, was held to be pleasing to the God they worshipped, whether a heathen divinity or the true God. Sacrifices were, therefore, not originated by the Israelites, but regulated for them by the law. They were public, as the regular sacrifices of the tabernacle or temple, or were private, as expressive of thanks for some blessing or sorrow for some sin. As the laws of the sacrifices occupy practically the whole of Leviticus and are touched upon in other books also, the details are too long for a concordance, and should be studied in a Bible Dictionary)

parable
(The word comes from the Greek parabolé which means a placing beside. It is therefore the placing of one subject by another as an illustration. Especially is it used for the illustration of spiritual things by familiar earthly objects or incidents. In the Bible the word is used more generally than elsewhere, being applied even to short proverbs)
The prophets made use of Parables, to give a stronger impression to prince and people of the threatenings or of the promises they made to them. Nathan reproved David under the parable of a rich man that had taken away and killed the lamb of a poor man, 2 Sam 12:2, 3, etc. Jotham, son of Gideon, proposed to the men of Shechem, the parable of the bramble, whom the trees had a mind to choose for their king, Judg 9:7, 8, etc.
Our Saviour in the gospels often speaks to the people in parables, Mat 13:10, 13, etc. He made use of them to veil the truth from those who were not willing to see it. Those who really desired to know would not rest till they had found out the meaning. This is given by Jesus as an illustration of Isa 6:9, 10.

This word comes from the Hebrew verb, pasach, which signifies to pass, to leap, or skip over. They gave the name of Passover to the feast which was established in commemoration of the coming forth out of Egypt, because the night before their departure, the destroying angel, who slew the firstborn of the Egyptians, passed over the Israelites, who were marked with the blood of the lamb which was killed the evening before; and which for this reason was called the Paschal Lamb.

The feast was kept for seven days, from the 14th to the 21st Nisan, corresponding to our March–April. As the beginning of the month was dependent on the moon there was nearly a month's difference between the possible times of beginning. This is the reason for the varying dates of our Easter, which must, as the commemoration of Christ's resurrection, be determined by the date of the Passover.

There were many rules as to the Passover Supper, some given in Exodus being for the first celebration only.

pastor
(The original meaning of this word was shepherd, and in this sense it is sometimes used in the Bible. The Eastern shepherd must both protect and feed his sheep—so there is a derived meaning of spiritual leader, minister, one given charge of a church of Christ, to care for spiritual interests of the people and feed their souls with spiritual food. This meaning also is found in the Bible)

Pharisee
The Pharisees were a religious party or school among the Jews at the time of Christ, so called from the Aramaic form of the Hebrew perûshim, the separated ones. This name may have been given them by their enemies, as they usually called themselves Haberim, associates. They were formalists, very patriotic but bigoted in their patriotism as in their religion. Their political influence was great, though they were only about 6000 to 7000 in number.

Jesus denounced the Pharisees for their hypocrisy, which was shown by their care for the minutest formalities imposed by the traditions of the elders, but not for the mind and heart which should correspond. They were ambitious, arrogant, and proudly self-righteous, all of which qualities were contrary to the teachings of Jesus. This explains in part their intense hostility to him. And their influence over the people, who had come to believe as they did, led to their demand for the crucifixion of Jesus.

There were priests in every nation, since the term is used of all who have charge of the religious life of a people. The Jewish priesthood as a definite body, dated from the appointment of Aaron and his sons as Priests of Jehovah at the time of the Exodus. At about the same time the entire tribe of Levi was set apart to do the non-priestly duties of the tabernacle, and the religious services. The priests were all descendants of Aaron, the legal head of the house of Aaron in each generation being High Priest.

The priestly duties included the instruction of the people, sanitary and medicinal care for their welfare, and the services at the house of God.

Jesus Christ, as the fulfilment of the old dispensation, is called the High Priest of those who have accepted him.

The word in the New Testament is often taken for those promises that God made to Abraham and the other patriarchs of sending the Messiah. It is in this sense that the apostle Paul commonly uses the word promise, Rom 4:13, 14; Gal 3:16. The Holy Spirit of promise, Eph 1:13, is the Holy Ghost, which God has promised to those that shall believe in him. The first commandment with promise is Honour thy father and mother, Eph 6:2. To which God has added this promise, that their days shall be long upon the earth, Ex 20:12.

Ordinarily this word is understood as meaning one who foretells future events. It meant, at the time our English Bible was translated, also a preacher—and prophesying meant preaching. A meaning of the word less often recognized, but really as common, is one who tells —a forth-teller—who speaks for another, most usually for God. It is in this sense that many Bible characters are called prophets, as for example, Aaron, Moses, and Jesus Christ. Those prophets who wrote their prophecies, which are preserved to us in our Bible, are divided into two groups: four major prophets—Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel—and 12 minor prophets, whose names are given to the last 12 books of the Old Testament. There are also a number of prophets named in the Old Testament who were important in their day, but who left no writings behind them. The most important of these are Elijah and Elisha, whose deeds are related in 1 Ki 17–21; 2 Ki 1–9, 13. The periods of the prophecies preserved to us are in some cases a little uncertain. The following is, at least, approximately correct.

1. Isaiah began to prophesy near the time of the death of Uzziah, king of Judah. He continued to prophesy to the reign of Manasseh, who caused him to be put to death.
2. Jeremiah began in the thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah king of Judah. He continued to prophesy till the taking of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans; and it is thought he died two years after in Egypt; Baruch was his disciple and amanuensis.
3. Ezekiel was carried captive to Babylon, along with Jeconiah king of Judah, 11 years before the destruction of Jerusalem. He preached during the captivity for about 22 years. We do not know when he died.
4. Daniel was taken into Chaldea in the third year of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and prophesied at Babylon to the end of the captivity.
5. Hosea prophesied under Jeroboam II. king of Israel, and his successors, perhaps to the destruction of Samaria.
6. Joel prophesied under Josiah about the same time as Jeremiah.
7. Amos began to prophesy the second year before the earthquake, which was in the reign of king Uzziah, about six years before the death of Jeroboam II. king of Israel.
8. Obadiah dwelt in Judea, probably after the taking of Jerusalem, and before the desolation of Idumea.
9. Jonah lived in the kingdom of Israel under the kings Joash and Jeroboam II. about the same time as Hosea, Isaiah, and Amos.
10. Micah lived under Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; he was contemporary with Isaiah, but began later to prophesy.
11. Nahum appeared in Judah under the reign of Hezekiah, and after the expedition of Sennacherib.
12. Habakkuk lived in Judea during the reign of Jehoiakim, before the coming of Nebuchadnezzar into the country.
13. Zephaniah appeared at the beginning of the reign of Josiah, and before the twenty-eighth year of this prince.
14. Haggai was the great prophet of the Return to Jerusalem, and the rebuilding of the temple. He is supposed to have been an old man, as Hag 2:3 is taken to mean that he had seen the old temple before its destruction by Nebuchadnezzar.
15. Zechariah prophesied in Judea at the same time as Haggai, and continued to prophesy after him, being younger.
16. Malachi, the author of the last book in the Old Testament, lived about the time of Nehemiah's second visit to Jerusalem. Nothing whatever is known of him.

This term comes from the Greek word, Proselytos, which signifies a stranger, one that comes from abroad, or from another place. The Hebrew word Ger or Necher, has the same signification. It means a convert to Judaism from among the Gentiles.

The Talmud distinguishes between Proselytes of the Gate, and Proselytes of Righteousness. The first are those who dwelt in the land of Israel and were not bound by circumcision. The term is derived from the expression the stranger that is within thy gates, Ex 20:10, etc.

The Proselytes of Righteousness are those that were converted to Judaism, who received circumcision, and observed the whole law of Moses. They were therefore perfect Israelites.

publican, -s

A tax-gatherer. The taxes were farmed by the Roman Senate to the highest bidders. These delegated their duties to others, the one condition being that they should raise as much money as possible.

They were especially detested by the Jews, not so much on account of their frequent dishonesty, but because they were paid servants of the hated Romans. They were therefore considered as traitors and apostates.

refuge

Cities of refuge. In order to provide for the security of those, who unawares and without any design should kill a man, the Lord commanded Moses to appoint six cities of refuge, that the manslayer might retire thither, and have time to prepare for justification before the judges, so that the kinsman of the deceased might not pursue him thither and kill him. Of these cities there were three on each side Jordan: those on the west of Jordan were Kedesh of Naphtali, Hebron, and Shechem. Those beyond Jordan were Bezer, Golan, and Ramoth-gilead, Josh 20:7, 8. These cities were to be easy of access, and to have smooth and good roads to them, and bridges where there should be occasion. When there were any cross-roads, they took care to set up posts with an inscription, directing the way to the city of refuge. This city was to be well supplied with water and all kind of provisions. The case then came before the judges, that if possible he might clear himself. If he was found innocent, he dwelt safely in the city to which he had retired; if otherwise, he was put to death, according to the severity of the law. Though he was found innocent, he was not therefore immediately set at liberty, but he was obliged to dwell in this city, without going out of it, till the death of the high priest: And if before this time he should any where go out of the city, the avenger of blood might safely kill him, Num 35:25, 26, 27, etc.

The Hebrew word means rest, from the statement in Gen 2:2, that God rested and hallowed the seventh day. By the Jewish law given at Sinai the seventh day was to be a day of rest, in which no secular work was to be done, and which was to be kept holy to God. At a later period the simple Jewish law of early days was added to by the traditions of the elders, until the sabbath rules became burdensome, and, in some cases, foolish. It was against this, and not against God's law of the sabbath that Jesus set himself in his teaching and healing.

The sabbath, one day out of each week, was kept by the Jews on the day now called Saturday. How early this was taken to be the seventh day is not known. After the ascension of Jesus the disciples met on the first day of each week for prayer and praise. The Jewish Christians for a long time kept both the seventh and the first; but as Gentile Christians, having never kept any such day before, celebrated only the first day of the week as the Lord's Day, the celebration of the seventh by Christians was finally abandoned.

Because of the rule that a long journey should not be made on the sabbath, the short distance permitted, about a mile, received the name of a sabbath day's journey.

The word sabbath is often used in speaking of the rest of the fields from tillage, the rules for which are given in the Pentateuch.

An offering of any sort to a deity, with the idea of procuring favour or avoiding disaster. The idea of sacrifice is deeply rooted in the instincts of humanity; for it is found among every race at the earliest known period of its history as a well-established and thoroughly understood custom. The sacrifices were, in general, of two sorts: [1] the offering of the first-fruits, or of incense, to show the dependence of man on his deity, and to thank him for his benefits; [2] the burnt offering, to appease an angry god when displeased and ready to bring distress upon him.

Most probably the plan of sacrifices arranged by Moses was an adaptation of what had always been their customs, from the time of Abraham. One respect in which the Jews differed from the heathen nations around them was in the absence of human sacrifice.

The book of Hebrews shows how Jesus Christ, in becoming a sacrifice for man, made further sacrifices unnecessary.

The Jews ceased offering sacrifice when the Temple was destroyed, A.D. 70. The custom is now found only in savage tribes.

The word is also used symbolically, as the sacrifice of one's lips.

Revisions very often translate it offering.

Sadducees
A religious party or sect among the Jews at the time of Christ. They were probably disciples of a Zadok—but authorities are uncertain who he was or when he lived. The sect was small but very wealthy, and included the higher priests. The chief distinction between these and the Pharisees was the insistence by the Sadducees that only the written law was obligatory.

The special doctrines of the Sadducees were [1] the denial of a resurrection and a future life, with all that includes ; [2] the denial of the existence of angels or spirits.

salt

This was even more indispensable to the Hebrews than to us, as they used it as an antidote to the effects of the heat of the climate on animal food, and it also was used in the sacrifices. They had an inexhaustible and ready supply of it on the southern shores of the Salt Sea, now called the Dead Sea.

Salt symbolized hospitality, durability and purity. To eat the salt of the king was to owe him the utmost fidelity. To eat bread and salt together was to make an unbreakable league of friendship.

A whip made of cords or leather thongs fastened into a handle. Usually there were three of these thongs in each scourge, and they were often reinforced with bits of metal which tore the skin and flesh. Notable scourgings mentioned in the Bible are those of Christ, in the Gospels, and of Paul, in 2 Cor 11:24. The scourge of small cords used by Jesus in clearing the Temple, was merely a symbol of authority. Scourging differs from beating, which was done with rods.

The word is also used as to-day, figuratively, for a cause of calamity of any sort.

[1] In the Old Testament any government clerk or secretary. [2] The Sopherim (plur.) who copied, taught, and explained the law. Ezra was one of the most noted of those in Old Testament times. Before the Exile this work was done by the Levites, but later it was gradually put into the hands of a specially trained body of laymen.

Not only did they copy the written law, but they formulated and wrote down the detailed rules made by later authorities, which made up what was called the oral law, or the traditions of the elders. They had much opportunity for the exercise of that hypocrisy for which our Lord denounced them in company with the Pharisees.

The Hebrews knew little, and most of them nothing, about the ocean as we understand this word, though the ocean is probably referred to in Gen 1. [1] The largest body of water really known to them was the Mediterranean Sea, which is probably referred to in Deut 11:24. and several other places. [2] The Red Sea was naturally a familiar name to them, Ex 15:4. [3] The Salt Sea, or Dead Sea, and other large inland waters are meant in such places as Deut 3:17; Joel 2:20. [4] Any great collections of waters, as the Nile, Isa 19:5, and the Euphrates, Jer 51:36, are in some places called Seas.

Because of the fact that few could read or write, the use of the seal was far more common in olden times than now. Each person had his own private seal which it was a capital crime to copy. This was affixed to every sort of a document, as we now sign our names.

The word is very frequently used symbolically, as in Rom 4:11; circumcision is said to be a seal of the righteousness of faith.

This word is generally used to mean a party in religion, differing in belief from the main body. In our old version it is frequently translated heresy, which the Revisions change to sect. There were several sects among the Jews in the time of Christ, the chief being: [1] the Pharisees or formalists; [2] the Sadducees or materialists; and [3] the Essenes, a sort of monastic body. Other divisions, as the Herodians and Zealots, were mainly political.

The religion preached by Christ and his disciples was frequently called a sect, for it was quite a number of years before it was extended to the Gentiles, and the Jews who embraced it were faithful to the major part of their ancestral faith.

This Hebrew word is found seventy one times in the book of Psalms, and three times in Habakkuk. It is very probably a musical or liturgical sign.

The older view was that it indicated a pause, but it is now believed to be derived from a word signifying Up! This may have been intended for the players, for the singers, or for the congregation, or for all of them.

sepulchre

Or grave. The Hebrews have always taken great care about the burial of their dead. Most of their sepulchres were hollow places dug into rocks, as was that bought by Abraham, for the burying of Sarah, Gen 23:6*, those of the kings of Judah and Israel; and that wherein our Saviour was laid.*

Our Saviour in Mat 23:7*, compares the hypocritical Pharisees to* whited sepulchres which appeared fine without, but inwardly were full of rottenness and corruption. It is said, that every year, on the fifteenth of February, the Jews took care to whiten their sepulchres anew.

The Revisions usually change this to tomb.

There are several words in the Bible for various sorts of serpents. It is not always certain which of the many sorts is referred to. The Hebrew word nachash is a general term for any sort of serpent. Satan is called a serpent partly because of various qualities of the serpent which seem similar to his; partly because he assumed the form of a serpent in Eden; and partly because the serpent was a common symbol for evil.

In the wilderness the Israelites were plagued by fiery serpents. They were probably so called from the intense burning pain of their bite. The brazen serpent was made by Moses at the command of God to heal those who were so troubled. This was preserved till the time of Hezekiah, when it was destroyed because it had become an object of worship.

This word in the Bible usually means bond-servant, or slave, as there were rarely any others who acted as servants. See slave. It also means any one who serves another, as Joshua was the servant of Moses. Here the Revisions frequently change it to minister.

Servant is put for the subject of a prince. The servant of Pharaoh, the servants of Saul and those of David, are their subjects in general, and their domestics in particular, 2 Sam 11:11; 12:19; 1 Chr 21:3. In like manner also the Philistines, the Syrians, and several other nations, were servants of David; they obeyed him, they were his subjects, they paid him tribute, 2 Sam 8:6.

Moses is often called the servant of the Lord, Deut 34:5, Josh 1:2.

Servant is also taken for a person of a servile ignoble condition and spirit, who is altogether unfit for places of dignity, Eccl 10:7.

A piece of defensive armour, commonly of wood, covered with leather, plates of gold, or brass. Sometimes shields were made all of gold, or brass. Those that Solomon made were of beaten gold, 1 Ki 10:17. Shishak king of Egypt took these away, and Rehoboam made others of brass to serve in their stead, 1 Ki 14:26, 27.

In scripture God is often called the shield of his people, Gen 15:1, Ps 5:12. Faith in scripture is likewise called a shield, Eph 6:16.

Shields were hung up upon towers for ornaments, or as trophies of victory. The tower of David was adorned with a thousand shields, S of S 4:4.

We find in Scripture several songs composed upon important occasions; for example, Moses made one after the passage through the Red Sea, to thank God for the deliverance of his people, Ex 15:1, 2, etc. David composed a song in mourning for the death of Saul and Jonathan, and another for the death of Abner, 2 Sam 1:18, 19; 3:33. Jeremiah wrote his Lamentations, which are a song, wherein he deplores the calamities and ruin of Jerusalem; and he made another upon the death of Josiah king of Judah, 2 Chr 35:25. Deborah and Barak made a triumphant hymn after the defeat of Sisera, Judg 5:1, 2, 3, etc. The Canticles, or the Song of Songs, and the 45th Psalm, are songs to celebrate weddings, and are considered by many to be allegorical. Hannah the mother of Samuel, and king Hezekiah, returned thanks to God in songs, for the favours they had received, 1 Sam 2:1, 2, etc.; Isa 38:10, 11, etc. The songs of the Virgin Mary, Zacharias the father of John the Baptist, and old Simeon are of the same nature. They are thanksgivings to God for blessings received from him, Luke 1:46, 68; 2:29 30.

Diviner or Magician. These were very common among Eastern nations, magicians and soothsayers being referred to at various times, from the mention in Ex 7:11 of the magicians of Pharaoh, to the time of the Apostles, when the trade was still very lucrative, Acts 8:9; 13:6; 19:19.

The law of Moses forbade the consultation of magicians and soothsayers, upon pain of death, Lev 20:6. Saul did what he could to drive them out of the country of Israel, 1 Sam 28:3. But, for all this, many were still to be found; and the Israelites were always much addicted to these sorts of superstitions. And the same king who had been so eager in driving them out of his dominions, at last went to consult one himself, 1 Sam 28:7, 8, etc.

In Hebrew, Ruach, in Greek, Pneuma, wind, air. In scripture the word Spirit is taken, [1] For the Holy Ghost, the third person of the Trinity. [2] For the renewed nature, or spiritual part in man, Mat 26:41. [3] Signifies the soul, which continues in being even after the death of the body, Acts 7:59. [4] Good angels are called spirits, Heb 1:14. [5] The devils are often called unclean spirits, evil spirits, Mark 5:13; Luke 7:21. So in 1 Sam 18:10. [6] Spirit signifies an apparition or ghost, Mat 14:26, Luke 24:37, 39. [7] For the breath, the respiration, the animal life that is in beasts, Eccl 3:21. [8] Spirit is also taken for the wind, Amos 4:13, He that createth the wind, or spirit. These are the four spirits of the heavens, in Hebrew, winds, Zech 6:5. And in John 3:8, The wind bloweth where it listeth, in Greek, pneuma, the spirit.

This word included, for the Hebrew, all heavenly bodies except the sun and the moon. The stars and the grouping into constellations early attracted man's attention, and they are alluded to in the earliest-written of the books of the Bible. Among idolaters the stars soon became objects of worship. They were supposed to foretell events, and a whole science was built up around them.

Several stars spoken of especially in the New Testament have a figurative rather than a literal use.

[1] The day star is given as a sign of Christ's coming, or as a symbol of the spirit's illumination of the heart of one who has accepted Christ, 2 Pet 1:19.

[2] The morning star, which precedes the coming of day, is given as a designation of Christ as bringing the day of gospel light, Rev 2:28.

[3] The star of the wise men, which is the subject of much discussion, Mat 2:2.

The number of the stars was looked upon as infinite. When the scripture would express a very extraordinary increase and multiplication, it uses the symbol of the stars of heaven, or of the sand of the sea, Gen 15:5; 22:17; 26:4.

(*Theft was made the subject of one of the ten commandments. There was no penalty attached to theft of property but restitution, double or more, as the case might be. Stoics portico, because Zeno, the head of the Stoics, taught in a portico in the city of Athens. They held, that a wise man ought to be free from all passions; never to be moved either with joy or grief, esteeming all things to be ordered by an inevitable necessity and fate. Josephus says, that the Pharisees approach very near to the sentiments of the Stoics. They affected the same stiffness, patience, apathy, austerity, and insensibility. The sect of the Stoics was still considerable at Athens when St. Paul visited that city, Acts 17:18.

Precious stones as named in the Bible are difficult to identify, as no sufficient description is given of them.

The corner stone, or the head stone of the corner, Ps 118:22, is that put as the angle of a building, whether at the foundation, or at the top of the wall, and is of fundamental importance. It is often used metaphorically. Jesus Christ is the corner stone rejected by the Jews, but become the corner stone of the church, and the stone that binds and unites the Jews and Gentiles in the union of the same faith, Mat 21:42; Eph 2:20.

As Christ the Head is called the corner stone, so also his members, true believers, who are built upon, and derive spiritual life from the foundation, Christ, are called stones, 1 Pet 2:5. As the law was engraven on two tables of stones, so believers have the law written in their hearts. They are stones for their constancy, strength, and unmovableness in all the storms of life.

The white stone, Rev 2:17, has been variously regarded. Some think it is an allusion to an ancient custom of delivering a white stone to those who were acquitted in judgement, or of giving a white stone as a reward to such as conquered in their games.

Great heaps of stones, raised up for a witness of any memorable event, and to preserve the remembrance of some matter of great importance are the most ancient monuments among the Hebrews. Jacob and Laban raised such a monument upon mount Gilead, in memory of their covenant, Gen 31:46. Joshua erected one at Gilgal made of stones taken out of the Jordan, to preserve the memorial of his miraculous passage over this river, Josh 4:5, 6, 7. The Israelites that dwelt beyond Jordan, also raised one upon the banks of the river, as a testimony that they constituted but one nation with their brethren on the other side, Josh 22:10.

The sword in scripture is often used for war, Gen 27:40; Lev 26:2. By sword is understood the judgements which God inflicts upon sinners, Deut 3:41, 42; also the instrument which God uses to execute his judgements, Ps 17:13. Sword is figuratively put for power and authority, Rom 13:4. The word of God is called the sword of the Spirit, Eph 6:17. Moses calls God the sword of Israel's excellency, Deut 33:29. He is their strength, the author of all their past or approaching victories, by whose assistance they did excel, and gloriously conquer, and triumph over their enemies.

This word is found only once in the Old Testament in Ps 74:8, and there is no indication that synagogues existed before the Exile, although there are some reasons to think that they were in existence centuries earlier. As to Ps 74:8, They have burned up all the synagogues of God in the land; the original is, all the assemblies of God, by which must be understood the places where the people assembled to worship God. But this does not infer that those places were what we now mean by synagogues. After the Maccabaean period there were synagogues in every settlement where there were enough Jews to erect one. It is said that there were in the city of Jerusalem alone no less than four hundred and sixty, or even four hundred and eighty; but this is most probably an exaggeration. Every trading fraternity had a synagogue of their own, and even strangers built some for those of their own nation. Hence it is, that in Acts 6:9, mention is made of the synagogues of the Libertines, Cyrenians, Alexandrians, Cilicians, and Asiatics; which were appointed for the use of such of the inhabitants of these cities, or of these nations, as should at any time be at Jerusalem. The synagogue worship became the regular worship of the people outside of Jerusalem, the temple being visited at one or more of the great feasts.

In Palestine the synagogue was so built that the worshipper would face Jerusalem. At the upper end was the chest which contained the Book of the Law. Here were the chief seats so desired by the Pharisees, Mat 23:6; Jas 2:2, 3. In later times the congregation was divided, men on one side and women on the other, with a lattice partition between.

The word is used in the New Testament [1] for the building, Luke 7:5. [2] For the organization which worshipped there, Acts 6:9. The ruler of the synagogue was the one who had the responsibility of maintaining order, deciding on the order of public worship, etc., Luke 8:41; Acts 18:8. The minister had duties of a lower kind, more like those of a modern deacon, or of a sacristan.

Worship was held in the synagogue every sabbath, and every feast day, the main part of the service being the reading of the law, with an exposition of what was read, Acts 15:21; 13:15.

The ordinary school for Jewish children was in the synagogue of each village. Every boy was supposed to attend, and the teaching was mostly in the Law and other Scriptures.

The organization of the synagogue, where possible, included a council of the elders; and in these cases they had a certain amount of judicial power, Mat 10:17.

The synagogue of the Libertines, or freedmen, Acts 6:9, was, according to most interpreters, that of those Jews, who having been led away captive by Pompey and others, had afterwards recovered their liberty, and returned to Jerusalem, when Tiberias drove the Jews out of Italy.

tabernacle

This word literally means tent, and is used of any sort of temporary tent or booth, as well as for the tabernacle erected for the worship of God. Where the word is plural, except in the expression feast of tabernacles, it has the meaning of dwelling, or dwelling-place.

The Tabernacle erected for worship in the wilderness was thirty cubits in length, and ten in breadth and in height. It was divided into two partitions: the first was called The Holy Place, which was twenty cubits long, and ten wide: here were placed the table of shewbread, the golden candlestick, and the golden altar of incense. The second was called The most Holy Place, whose length was ten cubits, and breadth ten cubits. Here the ark of the covenant was kept, which was a symbol of God's gracious presence with the Jewish church. The most Holy was divided from the Holy Place by a curtain, or veil of very rich cloth, which hung upon four pillars of shittim wood, that were covered with plates of gold, Ex 26:1; Heb 9:2, 3. St. Paul refers to our natural body as a tabernacle, 2 Cor 5:1; 2 Pet 1:13.

The feast of tabernacles, Lev 23:34, was so called, because the Israelites kept it under booths of branches in memory of their dwelling in tents in their passage through the wilderness. It was one of the three great yearly feasts, when all the males were obliged to present themselves before the Lord. It was celebrated after harvest, on the 15*th day of the month Tisri, which answers to our month of October. The feast continued eight days; but the first day and the last were the most solemn.*

The Revised Versions most frequently use the word tent, in place of tabernacle.
